WELCOME TO CARE FOR INDIA !

How often have we all looked around us and felt upset, angry or disgusted with the state of affairs in India – be it the numerous poor children we see shivering in rags and begging on the streets, the quality of education dished out, the various health epidemics or other issues? And yet very often that anger or disgust or anguish fails to find a productive outlet which would help mitigate the problem.

India has always been a country with tremendous potential but unless each and every one of us becomes aware and contributes our share, that potential is always going to remain in the realms of speculation. It is unfair and impractical to expect only the government to be responsible for each and every problem and frankly, the results thereof are clearly visible today.

Care for India has been set up as a non-profit website whose purpose is to aggregate information about the many issues impacting India's development as well as the various initiatives taken by individual citizens, the government and NGOs to tackle each of these issues. The purpose of Care for India is to make it easier for each of us who cares for India to understand her problems and be able to help.

MISSION

To give a comprehensive picture of the current state of affairs on various social and developmental issues affecting India

To highlight the initiatives undertaken by individual citizens, NGOs, corporate to tackle each issue.

To create a searchable database of individual citizens' and NGOs' efforts on each issue, including contact details.

To provide a platform wherein 'needy' people - either the 'less privileged', NGOs or individual citizen working for a social cause can communicate about what they need

To unite concerned citizens or corporate entities to contribute to the cause of their choice by directly linking them with the respective NGOs / individuals working in that field or with the needy
